WHAT I DO

I help digital health companies build the sales engine they do not have yet.

Twenty-three years in enterprise sales, quotas carried to $12M, and five consecutive companies selling mental health, substance use, recovery, and specialty pharmacy products to self-insured employers and health plans. I know the buyer — CHROs, Total Rewards leaders, benefits consultants, health plan decision-makers — because I have sold to them from six different seats over eight years.

What that looks like depends on the company. Sometimes it is the whole engine — positioning, process, CRM, first hires. Sometimes it is the one piece that is stuck: a narrative that is not landing, a pipeline that will not forecast, a founder who needs someone in the room on the enterprise deals. I would rather start with the real problem than with a package.

I am also publicly sober and in recovery. Selling into a category built to treat that condition, it is a commercial credential, not a personal footnote: it is why founders trust the positioning work and why buyers take the meeting.

EXPERIENCE

The Carietti Group — Co-Founder & Principal, Sales & Business Development March 2026 – Present

Sales and business development practice serving digital health companies · Remote

I work with founders and early commercial teams at the point where selling has to become a system instead of a set of individual efforts. Engagements are scoped to what the company actually needs — a focused project, an ongoing fractional seat, or a full build through to hiring the leader who takes it over.

What I take on:

- ICP definition and market segmentation grounded in where the product actually wins
- Sales narrative, pitch, discovery framework, and objection handling
- Outbound cadences, email templates, and the messaging library behind them
- Sales process, stage definitions, qualification criteria, and forecast discipline
- Sales tech stack selection and a CRM stood up, configured, and live — not a recommendation deck
- Enablement, ramp, and onboarding for the reps who follow
- Recruiting and hiring the VP of Sales who takes it from there

How I work:

- Founders work directly with me. No junior associates, no bench, no account manager.
- I carry the number myself during the build. The playbook gets written from live pipeline, not from theory.
- I would rather scope small and earn the rest than sell a package that does not fit.
- The goal is always to make myself unnecessary — to build something that outlasts the engagement.

Sobrynth — VP of Sales, Fractional

May 2026 – Present

Workplace substance use disorder benefit sold to self-insured employers · Carietti Group engagement

- Own commercial strategy and enterprise pipeline for a workplace SUD benefit selling into self-insured employers, benefits consultants, and brokers
- Built the employer segmentation model and identified construction as the priority wedge: the US occupation with the highest drug overdose mortality rate (162.6 per 100k, roughly 3x the average worker), 12% alcohol use disorder against a 7.5% national rate, and 150% higher SUD diagnosis rates than other full-time workers — the highest-need, most underserved employer segment in the country
- Translate clinical outcomes into the benefits-economics language a CHRO and a broker actually buy on

VIVIO Health — Sr. Director of Sales

2026 – Present

Specialty drug management for large self-insured employers and health plans · Carietti Group engagement

- Sell specialty pharmacy cost management into large self-insured employers, health plans, and their consultant channel
- Operate at the most technical end of the benefits sale — pharmacy spend, clinical review, and plan design — where the buying committee is finance, clinical, and HR at the same table

You Are Accountable — VP, Business Development & Provider Relations March 2025 – March 2026*Seed-stage substance use disorder recovery platform · RemoteThe in-house version of what I now do fractionally: a sales function built from nothing at a seed-stage company.*

- Built the enterprise sales strategy from the ground up, expanding beyond recovery-native buyers into new employer verticals
- Opened 60+ new employer opportunities in the first year
- Designed and implemented the CRM architecture and sales process from scratch
- Established the go-to-market motion across employer, provider, and channel segments
- Led and developed the sales team driving cross-industry expansion
- Positioned the organization for scalable growth through structured pipeline management and a repeatable enterprise motion

Koa Health — Head of Enterprise Sales

April 2024 – February 2025

Digital therapeutics and mental health, sold to employers · Remote

- Reported directly to the CRO; drove US sales into employee populations of 2,000+
- Made the company's first-ever US sale, to a large agricultural organization
- Evaluated and commercialized dormant IP — crisis prediction tooling, body dysmorphia programming, PTSD digital therapeutics — turning shelved assets into sellable product
- Partnered with the C-suite and board to roadmap and prioritize enhancements to already-commercialized products
- Built differentiation campaigns with Marketing in a saturated category — clinical efficacy, political stress, and a video series on employee experience of PTSD, substance use, LGBTQIA+ resistance at work, and neurodivergence

Spring Health — Sr. Director, Strategic Accounts

June 2023 – April 2024

Mental health, sold to employers and health plans · Remote

- Sold into and supported employee populations of 10,000+
- Personal pipeline reported at 3x the size of any other rep's
- Created the prospecting process and metrics, then trained the team to execute against them
- Built substantial benefits consultant relationships on a working understanding of the benefits and healthcare ecosystem
- Events Chair, Sober @ Spring ERG
